SANTA BARBARA, CA – While vacations can be notorious for breaking the family budget, many travelers are discovering that it is often more enjoyable and affordable to get away in the spring than during peak summer travel season.

According to Graham Farrar, an owner of Santa Barbara Luxury Rentals, one little known secret to enjoying all the family-friendly activities that Santa Barbara has to offer – including great outdoor adventures, shopping, historical sites as well as cultural and educational opportunities designed for families – is being able to get twice the square footage for your family spring break vacation budget.

“If you've got kids in school, your family spring break vacation has special meaning for you,” said Farrar, whose company provides a variety of high-end vacation rentals in Santa Barbara. “And staying in a two- to three-bedroom beautifully appointed home offers more comfort, convenience and flexibility than a generic hotel room at a property that may not necessarily cater to your family's needs.”
